GENERATION CITIZEN

Despite the idealistic promises and the American nation founded with declarations of equality, the political and economic system was historically designed to include and prioritize the power and well-being of certain groups over others.

Generation Citizen seeks to build a world in which all young people exercise their civic power to create a just, inclusive, responsive democracy.

I see a future where the diverse, rising generation makes democracy flourish in every part of life, and every part of our country, and where America sees its multiculturalism as one of its greatest assets.
